

Good afternoon,

Our team wants to keep you continually informed about our current storm preparations. Ian has moved into hurricane status and is projected to continue strengthening as it heads towards the Gulf. The path of the storm has shifted a bit back towards the original destination of Mid-Florida West Coast, headed inland and making landfall Tuesday evening into Wednesday morning. Given the size of the storm, we expect all communities will feel some effects of the storm as early as tomorrow evening. Our communities will be on the right side of the storm, which at times can bring not only wind and rain but tornados as well. All communities are being vigilant in their preparations.

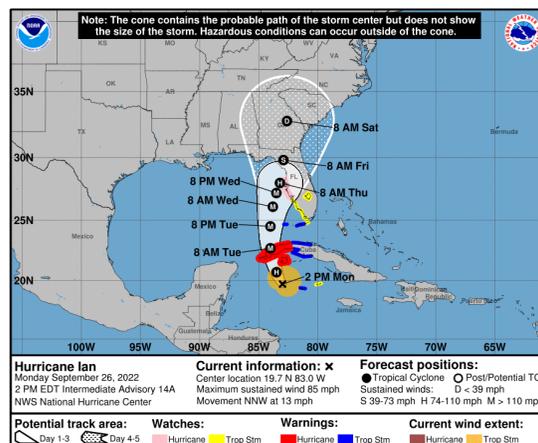

The teams worked through the weekend to ensure they are both personally prepared and the community is well positioned to weather the storm. Today, we are finalizing all preparations, so our focus will be on our residents once we start to feel any storm effects.

- To prepare for wind, all outdoor items are being removed and/or secured.
- To prepare for large amounts of rain, gutters, drains, and downspouts are receiving final inspection to ensure no blockage.
- Communities are prepared with sandbags and tarps for doorways in the small chance the community experiences any water intrusion.
- To prepare for any loss of power, fuel-powered generators are filled with priority refilling confirmed for extended outages. Community vehicles are also filled with fuel.

Our emergency staffing plans are in place, and have been confirmed with those sheltering in place, as well as our back up relief teams. Our corporate support teams made rounds today dropping off additional supplies, mattresses, bedding, and snacks for those staff who will shelter during the storm at each community.

We continue to thank you for your trust and confidence in us. We will continue to keep you updated throughout the week.

Be safe and stay prepared yourself. You are all important to us!
